

Luckiest Man Alive by Mike Adams (Capo 5th)

Intro G----Em----C----D----

Verse 1

You're standing in the mirror... fixing your hair for the night.

You laugh at something I said... I'm just glad you're feeling alright.

I'm watching you get ready... thinking how lucky I am.

The best part of my whole day... is just being right where I stand.

Chorus

And I say, honey, you look good tonight.

The kind of good that clears my mind.

Like the whole world slowed its spinning, and left the noise behind.

And I'm thankful just to be the one, standing here by your side.

The luckiest man a-l-i-v-e, walking with you tonight.

Verse 2

We're walking down the sidewalk... your hand resting in mine.

People rushing all around us... but we're taking our own time.

You don't even see them... you're just looking at the sky.

You're the only thing that's steady... in a world that's flying by.

Chorus

And I say, honey, you look good tonight.

The kind of good that clears my mind.

Like the whole world slowed its spinning, and left the noise behind.

And I'm thankful just to be the one, standing here by your side.

The luckiest man a-l-i-v-e, walking with you tonight.

Bridge

Sometimes I wonder how I got here... how life worked out this way.

But you lean a little c-l-o-s-e-r... and the words just slip away.

Break [G]----Em----C----D----

Verse 3

Back at the house, the shoes come off... keys resting by the door.

I pull you close for just a moment... I couldn't ask for more.

Final Chorus

And I say, honey, you look good tonight.

The kind of good that clears my mind.

Like the whole world slowed its spinning, and left the noise behind.

And I'm thankful just to be the one, standing here by your side.

The luckiest man a-l-i-v-e, walking with you tonight.

Walking with you tonight... ..the luckiest man alive.
